PLANS SHAPE UP FOR PIER RENOVATION

AT FORT MASON
CAPITAL CAMPAIGN

The At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign is a fund-raising effort to complete ten major renovations projects within the historic piers and buildings of Fort Mason Center. To date, over $3 million of the first-year goal of $4 million has been raised.

Over the next few months, look for changes to start taking place in the piers at Fort Mason.

The At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign has raised the necessary funding to begin the interior renovation of Piers 2 and 3. Pier 3 will be renamed the Festival Pavilion, and with complete renovation, this 70,000 square foot special event facility will accommodate 5,000 people comfortably. The William and Flora Hewlett Foundation has provided a lead gift of $500,000 for the Festival Pavilion renovation.

Nearly 30,000 square feet of Pier 2 will also be renovated. As it has in the past, this space, renamed the Exhibition Hall, will host art exhibits, special events, and gatherings for up to 3,000 people. Major funding for the Exhibition Hall has come from the Herbst Foundation, which has provided $750,000, and the Irwin Foundation of San Francisco, which has provided $200,000 for Pier 2.

Floor plans for these two projects, prepared by the San Francisco architectural firm of Robinson, Mills & Williams, are on display in the Fort Mason Center office lobby in Building A.

Andrea Jepson, Director of Operations at Fort Mason, looks forward to the improved facilities: "We don't expect the construction work to disrupt ongoing activity at Fort Mason too much, and the rewards to users and the public are going to be fantastic."

Under the renovation plan, the Festival Pavilion and Exhibition Hall will receive new flooring and lighting, display fixtures, caterer's areas, restrooms, and lobby areas. "We've had lots of calls from groups wanting to produce events in the new spaces," said Jepson. "Fort Mason will now be able to host a greater variety of special events and offer greatly improved production facilities. In keeping with the Fort Mason tradition, all of this will still be affordable for nonprofit groups," she said.

The Festival Pavilion and Exhibition Hall are just two of many At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign projects, described in previous issues of the Calendar. For more information, call 441-3400.

The Exhibition Hall in Pier 2 will welcome visitors through a spacious lobby with double doors designed to contain heat.

FINE ANIMAL GORILLA

Barbara: What do I say when I really want you to listen?
Koko: Gorilla unattention
B: I think you like to tease me.
K: Me polite.
B: Yes, but you like to tease.
K: Funny.
B: Well, it is.
K: Gorilla smile.
B: Like it when I tease you?
K: Gorilla frown.

This forthright exchange, conducted in American Sign Language, is the result of a remarkable study that has received worldwide attention.

Project Koko began in 1972 to explore the linguistic capabilities of the largest of the great apes—the gorilla. Born at the San Francisco Zoo on July 4, 1971, Koko has been sparking off fireworks ever since. Penny Patterson, then a Ph.D. candidate at Stanford University, began to teach Koko ASL. Since that time, Koko has been the subject of several television programs, two books, and was on the cover of National Geographic twice. The Gorilla Foundation, founded in 1976 as a nonprofit organization to assist in the study and preservation of gorillas and other primates, now hopes to establish a gorilla preserve in Hawaii, to provide a protected environment for Koko and her friends.

Few animal studies have received so much popular attention. Lectures and slide presentations by the Gorilla Foundation Auxiliary draw sell-out crowds across the country, even without the presence of Koko.

This month, there will be an audiovisual program in the Fort Mason Conference Center, discussing language acquisition over the past ten years of work with Koko and her male gorilla companion, Michael, and plans and expectations for the future. Deborah Stratmann, anthropologist and Auxiliary president, will give the presentation.

While it may seem difficult to believe that animals, even gorillas, can communicate with humans in a purposeful way, those who have participated in such an exchange have no doubts. Similar communication occurs daily, between pets and their owners. ASL provides a more sophisticated tool for the analysis of gorilla-human communication, as the Gorilla Foundation presentations hope to demonstrate.

The program at Fort Mason will take place on Monday, February 23 at 8pm. Admission is $5 ($4 for Gorilla Foundation members). Tickets can be reserved by sending a check to The Gorilla Foundation (TIX), Post Office Box 620-530, Woodside, California 94062. Be sure to specify the date and location of the program. Reservations will be held at the door.

For further information about the presentation, or about The Gorilla Foundation, its publications, or Project Koko, call 851-8505.

SF CRAFT & FOLK ART MUSEUM

Fort Mason Center will welcome a new resident to gallery space in Building A next month. The San Francisco Craft and Folk Art Museum, a gallery and center for contemporary crafts and traditional folk art founded in 1982, seeks to serve the diverse interests and ethnic groups of the greater Bay Area.

The Museum's mission has two facets—one conceptual, one practical. The Museum sees "fine crafts" as "fine art." Similarly, folk art is appreciated in its own right and as a source of inspiration for the ethnic sensibilities and spirit of experimentation prevalent in much of today's craft art.

The other facet of the Museum's mission is to make traditional folk art and contemporary crafts of the highest quality accessible to as broad a range of the public as possible. The Museum organizes educational events, such as public slide shows, lectures and workshops in connection with its exhibitions. In addition, the staff edits and publishes a bimonthly newsletter, a scholarly quarterly, and exhibition catalogues which are disseminated to a national and international audience. The Museum's library serves as a public resource for research and study in the field of craft and folk arts. Participation in a library exchange program with organizations across the United States and Canada makes accessible a larger number of periodicals and exhibition catalogues. The Museum provides an outreach program, "Folk Art in the Schools," with two staff members visiting two San Francisco public schools each week, giving a hands-on presentation of folk art and materials for the children to do classroom projects.

The Museum is the only institution of its kind in Northern California. It provides a permanent showcase for contemporary crafts and folk art. Its six exhibitions each year, drawing 6,000 visitors, show the highest quality contemporary crafts, primarily of Northern California, and folk art and traditional crafts from around the world.

A small, but growing, permanent collection, some of which is intended for study as well as exhibition, is focused primarily on contemporary crafts of Northern California and folk art and traditional crafts of the Pacific Basin area.

"Hopi Art - A Century of Continuity & Change" San Francisco Craft & Folk Art Museum's first Fort Mason Exhibit begins in March.

Additional resources include a library of approximately 1000 items, including books, catalogs and periodicals on all aspects of folk art and crafts, and a collection of 4500 original color slides, which will form the nucleus of a slide library for use by the general public and scholars.

The Museum's first exhibit at Fort Mason will be "Hopi Art—A Century of Continuity and Change." The evolution of pottery, weaving, painting, basketry, jewelry and kachina carving of the past 100 years will be featured. Differences between earlier works and contemporary examples of pottery and kachina carving will graphically illustrate the external influences that have been brought to bear on the Hopi artisans.

The exhibit will run from March 4 through April 26, Wednesday through Friday from noon to 5pm, Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4pm. A reception on Tuesday, March 10, from 7 to 9pm, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

For further information about the Museum and its programs, or the exhibit, call 668-0406.
